Cookie settingsACCEPT Privacy & Cookies Policy Back Support Drill two holes, approximately 2" apart at the center of the back support piece Insert the female end of a 1" Chicago screw into each hole Center the back support piece approximately 2" down from the top of the acrylic tube Mark where the Chicago screws meet the acrylic tube Carefully drill holes in the acrylic tube for the Chicago screws I believe acrylic is brittle and prone to chip and crack when drilled To drill the holes safely, i started with the smallest drill bit and increased the size incrementally, letting the drill do the work Using Crazy Glue, glue some scrap rubber pieces over the holes and drill holes through them Crazy Glue the back strap to the acrylic tube, aligning the Chicago screws to the holes in the tube as you do so Place a small washer through the male end of the Chicago screw and attach to the back support through the rubber and acrylic tube Note: Using Crazy Glue on the acrylic tube left some residue on the Ink Tank. I would caution that you use it sparingly and be careful with excess glue (ie on fingers as well). Bottom Cover - I waited to glue bottom piece onto the acrylic tank until this point as i was concerned about how drilling into the acrylic was going to turn out. Crazy Glue the base piece onto the bottom of the round acrylic tube Glue the 1" strip with the timing belt around the unfinished part of the base and the acrylic tube Top Cover - To make sure the top cover stays in place, i used a short thin piece of velcro along the top rim of the acrylic tube and the corresponding side inside the channel of the top cover Shoulder Straps About the shoulder strap, with the buckle end to the back, to the inside support piece of the back support. Carefully drill through both pieces, ensuring that you drill through the webbing strap (for extra support). With a washer through the female end of a .75" Chicago screw, insert through the back (outside) of the back support. Glue the shoulder strap to the inside of the back support, pushing the female end of the Chicago screw through. Screw in the male end of the Chicago screw from the inside of the shoulder strap. Do this again for the other side. Ink Level Indicator Referencing online images and screenshots, i replicated the Ink Tank's ink level indicator using red and white Oracal Intermediate Cal 651 PVC film Comfort - After trying on the Ink Tank, my son noted discomfort at his shoulders with the shoulder straps and his lower back with the bottom cover / timing belt. I attached a couple of strips of soft foam under the shoulder straps and at the base of the Ink Tank (as shown above) and it worked great to relieve the pressure. "Waste Tank Full" or "Ink Waste Tray Full" messages on your meter mean your ink system requires immediate maintenance. Your mailing system may not be usable until your waste tank (waste tray) is replaced. Select your meter for steps: Your meter displays the message "Waste Tank Near Full" or "Waste Tank Full", and may not print. Excess ink from purges and heavy use eventually fills the ink waste tank in the meter. When the ink reservoir nears capacity, the meter displays the message "Waste Tank Near Full". When ink reservoir reaches full capacity, the meter displays the message "Waste Tank Full". Step 1: Create a case to request a replacement waste pad Sign in and create a technical support case to request a replacement waste pad as soon as either of these messages appear. The waste pad must be replaced by a Pitney Bowes technician. You cannot purchase or replace the waste pad yourself. You can temporarily suspend the "Waste Tank Near Full" message and continue processing mail for a short time. Once the "Waste Tank Full" message appears, the meter becomes inoperable and requires immediate service. Step 2: Temporarily suspend the "Waste Tank Near Full" message to process mail Follow these steps to temporarily suspend the "Waste Tank Near Full" message and process mail. Put the meter into Service Mode and clear the message. Unplug the meter. Wait one minute. Plug the meter back in. Press and hold both the Space and Shift keys when the Initializing screen displays (the second screen to display during startup). You should be prompted for a password. If you are not prompted for your password, go back to Step 1.a. and try again, making sure to press and hold both the keys at the Initializing screen. When prompted for your password, release the keys and enter 6946. Select the Diagnostics screen on the meter display. Select PM Maintenance. Press Page Down until Clear Waste Tank, Clear Waste Count, Reset Waste Count, or Reset Waste Tank displays. Press Yes/Enter. Select Continue Select Continue until you reach the Home screen. Enter 9287 if the machine asks for a code to proceed. Reboot the meter. Unplug the power cord. Wait one full minute. Plug the power cord back in, ensuring that it is plugged directly into a wall outlet. Use the Contact Us options below, if you need further assistance.
